Mary Elvira Still
Lovingly called “MOTHER STILL” by the ASO students

- Married to Dr. Still for 50 years from 1860 until her death in 1910
- Always encouraged and supported Dr. Still never suggesting he turn back
- Dr. Still acknowledged that it was the strength of his wife that helped him through the early trials and assaults on the osteopathic profession
1892

- 105 MD medical schools in the USA
- 68 all male medical schools
- 32 male medical schools that would accept a token number of females
  - If a school had ever accepted even a single female student, they are in this category
- 5 all female schools (4 allopathic & 1 homeopathic)

American School of Osteopathy

- Founded in 1892 by Andrew Taylor Still
- Kirksville, MO
- First medical school in America to open as a co-educational institution
- First medical school in America to accept men and women on a completely equal basis
- First class had 6 females and 17 males
- Within 3 years the school was almost 50% female
First catalogue of ASO

“Women Received”

“Women are admitted on the same terms as men. It is the policy of the school that there shall be no distinction as to sex, and that all shall have the same opportunities, and be held to the same requirements. They pursue the same studies, attend the same lectures, are subject to the same rules, and pass the same examinations.
